

Circles of Learning

Our friends teach us a lot, but sometimes we do not recognize how much we have learned from them. Fill in the diagram below by following these directions:

- 1 In the innermost circle, write your name.
- 2 In the five segments of the next circle, write the names of your five closest friends.
- 3 In the next circle, in the segment that corresponds to each of your five friends, list two or three things you have learned from that friend.
- 4 In the outermost circle, in the segment that corresponds to each of your five friends, write the names of people to whom you have been introduced by that friend.

Example for one segment:

