

Presentations on Vocations

Imagine that as part of a vocations awareness campaign you have been asked to create a series of teen-friendly multimedia presentations about vocations that will be posted on the diocesan Web site. Your task is to create three video or audio—or podcast—presentations, each 5 minutes long, to help teens learn about various vocations and how they might be called.

Your series of video or audio presentations must contain or demonstrate the following:

- understanding of the following four concepts
 - We are all called to holiness and to follow the evangelical counsels in our own way.
 - Life in a religious community is characterized by the rhythm of daily prayer.
 - We are all called to be priest, prophet, and king, with Jesus.
 - The ordained ministers of the Church, through the grace of the Holy Orders, use Christ's authority to govern, teach, and sanctify the Church.
- creative reflection on these main concepts that blends theoretical and practical information
- presentations that are appropriate and reflect the maturity and substance of a high school religious studies course
